Briefing for the three Trados projects

Thank you very much for your help with this study. Please read the following briefing carefully before working on the three Trados projects. Each project conveys a different type of translating task, which are translation (without machine translation), machine-assisted human translation and post-editing. The language combination is English (United Kingdom) into Spanish (Spain).

Please note the following when translating and post-editing:

- The source texts are pieces of news taken from a magazine. The target audience is people who read frequently this type of magazines.
- The tone and style should be as accessible and informative as is usually expected in this type of publication, and fluent in the target language.
- In terms of cultural references, please ensure that the final target text is suitable for a Spanish-speaking audience in Spain. Consider any references or idioms that may need to be adapted.
- Adapt your translation to the linguistic conventions established in the Spanish for Spain target language. Localise all references such as numbers, measurements, dates, and currency to the Spanish format (metric system, date format DD/MM/YYYY, Euro currency, etc.).
- Make sure that you use correct spelling and typography (commas in numbers, single/double Latin quotation marks, etc.).
- Use a non-breaking/hard space (Ctrl + Shift + Space or Alt + 255) between a figure and its symbol or unit (e.g., 25 ºC, 10 cm).
- Final quality is expected to be free of errors, mistranslations, lack of typos, and to be completely cohesive and coherent. Your final target file must read like a Spanish for Spain original. Quality is expected to be publishable; your translation must be the final file ready to be delivered to the customer.
